Could anything be neater than the old darkey's reply to a beantiful young hady whom he offered to lift over the gutter, and who insisted that she was too heavy? "Lor, missus," said he, "I'se used to lifting barrels of sugar."

The Presbyterian Church at Trenton, Mo, which had just been completed at a cost of $7,000; was destroyed by fire a cost of $7,000; was destroyed by fire a few nights since. The fire originated from a defect in the heating furnace. The building was insured for $3,000 and on the following Sunday over $4,000 was subscribed by the congregations of the different Churches to rebuild the building.

A deaf and dumb mendicant was sad denly startled by the rude shouts of some boys while walking down a New York street, and in turning slipped on an orange peel and fell. He gave the lads a severe lecture, much to the enjoyment of a blind beggar at the corner, who saw the whole occurrence through his green glasses, and was much amus ed thereat.

A very genteel-appearing young man wearing kid gloves and carrying a lithe and flexible walking stick, thought he would have a joke with a rusty and venerable old farmer on the Fair Grounds the other day. "Halloo," said venerable old farmer on the Fair Grounds the other day. "Halloo," said the daudy, "are you one of the judges on hogs?" "Waal, yaas, walk right up and let me look at you," said the old farmer. That youth was soon lost amid the crowd, and no other judges on swine saw him.

We spoke last week of a Baptist meeting in progress at the Hickory Creek Church, in Salem township. We received, too late for publication; an account of thirteen accessions at the time the account was written. We received a postal card from Judge Feurt, dated the 22d, in which he says that up to that date, that there have been 30 additions, 27 to be baptized, and that the meeting still continues with unareceived, too late for publication; an additions, 27 to be baptized, and that the meeting still continues with una-bated vigor and interest.— DeKalb Reg-

He had catarrhal fever at first, but I think the tever has Frank Leslie's Illustricte Zeitung The Day's Doings, Frank Leslie's Lady's Journal ver at first, but I think the tever has now left him. I left him, however, in a very debulitated condition, and with the cough unchecked. Notwithstanding the frequent and prostrating attacks of sickness he continues to evince the liveliest interest in everything that concearns his people. His heart goes out to them, and embraces them all, collectively and individually. I saw numerous instances and proofs during my visit. He is confined entirely to his bed, and was in so feeble a condition that he did not allow himself to talk much about public affairs. He is tion that he did not allow himself to talk much about public affairs. He is anxious, however, to get on to Washington City.

An important inquiry with every farmer is, how to market his produce to best advantage. This is one or the most interesting questions that can be discussed by farmers, whether in the grange or elsewhere. If it were thoroughly discussed and properly understood, it would save hundreds of thousands of dellars annually to the farmers. ands of dollars annually to the farmers of every State.

We will say that a man has a large corn crop. The important question with him is, how to get it to market most profitably. Shall he hand it to the nearest depot, and take what he can get for it? Most farmers know that there is very little made, and frequently an actual loss, where all the labor minute.

MRS. MARY CURRY,

THE VETERAN MILLINER, OF OREGON, MO.

Is NOW READY TO SUPPLY HER CUStomers, both Old and New, with all kinds of Millinery, Falley Goods, Trimly an actual loss, where all the labor has to be hired to raise corn and sell it in this manner. It is too bulky and requires too much labor to convert it into money this way. But the farmer may ask, do you know of a better way? Certainly. Take this tall as an illustra-tion. The farmer knows long before his crop is ready to market, about the quantity of corn he will have to sell. He should provide for disposing of it long before it is ready for market. Say that he has obtained the fall before, a large number of good sows to farrow in March, he is now preparing to convert the bulky corn crop into pork, and, by so doing, to leave much of the fertile product it contains, on his own premisproduct it contains, on his own premises. If all his labor has to be hired, by BY THE UNDERSIGNED. harvest the crop. He will have to occasionally move the fence, that is all. He thus compresses a thousand loads of corn into a few thousand pounds of pork, saves all the money he would have to pay out for labor, and when pork is as high as it is this fall, gets more than double for his corn what he would have got by the load, and saves money he would have had to pay for hands. In this way he makes the corn take itself to market on legs—and our portable fences he can make the hogs harvest the crop. He will have to oc-casionally move the fence, that is all. But we will say that the farmer has a large hay crop, large stacks of straw, as well as a large corn crop. How will he get these to market? Why, in very much the same way. He has provided himself with cattle, and also feeds them corn and gets them fat, and he has no
